BIBLIOGRAPHY

This bibliography includes documents and works cited in footnotes. It also includes bibliographies and surveys which provided a substantial number of references to further sources. Not listed are the numerous general histories of education and librarianship consulted, unless reference was made to them in the chapter on "The Historiography of School Libraries" or in footnotes. Also not listed are the many standard reference tools used, including dictionaries, general encyclopaedias, encyclopaedias of education or librarianship, biographical dictionaries, and atlases, some of which were used only once to establish a date, a location, or the correct title or date of publication of a work. Omitted, too, are the many indexes and abstracting publications, covering the fields of education and librarianship, which were used to locate books, manuscripts, and articles, including Library Literature, Library and Information Science Abstracts, British Education Index, Australian Education Index, The Education Index, ERIC (Educational Resources Information Centre) services, Newspapers in Australian Libraries, and the British Museum (now the British Library), Library of Congress, and State Library of New South Wales published catalogues.

The bibliography will be set out in the following way:
