

Creative ways to promote cognitive thinking

Hall E – 533

Josie Santomauro, Margaret-Anne Carter

Children with ASD often experience negative self-talk. The starting point of stopping such negative dialogues inside your head is to be aware of it, challenge it, and replace it with helpful thinking. The objective of this session is to portray Cool Comics as a vehicle that assists children in recognising negative self-talk. By working through the comic scenarios, children develop an awareness of negative self-talk and practice replacing it with more positive self-talk.

Type: Poster

Level: Intermediate